The merger between Nordplan and Univeyor creates a new and more competitive company

Nordplan and Univeyor, both located in Denmark, have been merged into one company with effect from late 2009. The merger was announced in June 2009, and since then focus has been on creating a common platform for the new company. We can now reveal a new name and logo.

Qubica A/S is the new name of the company, which has its core competence within logistics and storage solutions. Name and logo reflect the core competencies of the company - and thus describe the concept of space optimization and the logic of handling parcels or boxes. Qubiq is a term taken from the word "cube", but with a different and creative spelling. The merger has created a more broadly based company with a strong platform for future growth based on unique and innovative products, strong customer focus and great technical knowledge.

CEO, Niels Otto Andersen, welcomes the launch of the name Qubiq and the new logo: "Our new name and logo reflect the global strengths of the newly merged company. We provide intelligent and customized solutions based on innovative concepts within both storage and logistics. Hence, we will continue using both "Intelligent Storage" and "Intelligent Logistics" together with the new name. We look forward to the opportunities for growth in the coming years. "

Niels Otto Andersen emphasizes that Qubica A/S starts off with a solid economic platform, which will make the company competitive both on the home market, being Scandinavia and UK, as well as on the global export market. He has an optimistic outlook for the new company. As a result of a major internal change program implemented over the past year, including among other things a complete, new competitive supply chain model consisting of in-house product designs combined with a group of competent sub-suppliers and partners, the company now has a much stronger competitive foundation

Headquarters for the newly merged company will be in Arden in the northern part of Denmark, but the archive business will remain located in Vipperød in the eastern part of Denmark.

Qubica A/S currently employs approximately 150 people and expects a turnover of around EURO 25 to 35 million in 2010.
